PROPERTIES OF FRICTION MATERIAL

Friction material

The most important factor is the friction material in the brake pad and shoe.

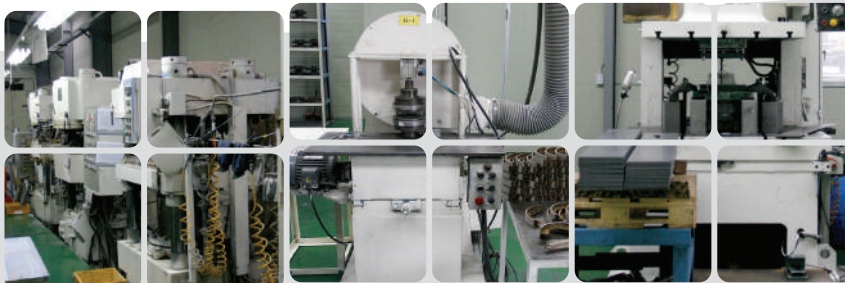

We have been constantly developing a special friction material with the reliable properties.

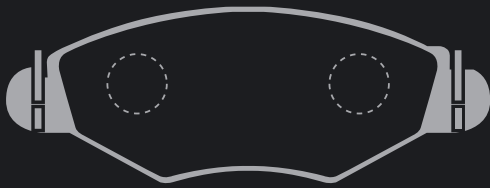

Our friction materials have the following properties :

1. High static and dynamic coefficient of friction under all permissible environmental circumstances.
2. Stable and predictable dynamic friction coefficient within the requisite range of operating conditions, e.g. -40°C $1,200^{\circ}\text{C}$ (flash-surface rather than bulk temperature).
3. Minimum wear characteristics combined with frictional properties that inhibit counter-surface wear, i.e. kind to the rotating counter-member.
4. Adequate shear strength to resist rupture or catastrophic failure.
5. Adequate corrosion resistance to retain the preferred property spectrum in the presence of water, salt, sand and mud, etc.
6. Sufficiently thermally insulating to avoid brake fluid overheating and vapour-lock.
7. Conformance to the counter-surface to facilitate uniform feat generation.
8. Zero N.V.H. and judder generation or excitation characteristics.
9. Optimized costs of raw materials, processing and manufacturing technologies.
